Operitel's Enterprise Learning Portal works collaboratively with the company's flagship LMS product, LearnFlex™, allowing Operitel's clients to target learning and training content specific to their individual needs. The Enterprise Learning Portal facilitates the aggregation of data from a number of different enterprise applications based on client profile and preferences. The portal can also leverage Microsoft SharePoint, which is a collaborative enterprise sharing system, thus facilitating an integrated solution with the power to generate or recover significant revenues.

"We're thrilled to be included in TrainingIndustry.com's Top 20 Learning Portal list," said Micheal Skinner, Chief Executive Officer of Operitel Corporation. "Their site – and their Top 20 lists in particular – are well respected in the industry. It is also a great honour to be included among the other prominent companies in the new Learning Portal List."

The TrainingIndustry.com Top 20 lists ranks companies in the learning management sector around the world to provide an unbiased assessment on the industry's major players, thus creating a more efficient marketplace for learning. The new Learning Portal Top 20 selection was based on integral capabilities of the learning portals, such as: breadth of portal capabilities, types of clients served, overall commitment to the corporate training industry, industry visibility, innovation and impact, number and strength of clients, and geographic reach..

Operitel Corporation's Enterprise Learning Portal focuses on adaptability and user experience. Its portal provides an ease-of-use system with the ability to configure features and functionality that meets the needs of HR departments. Primarily an "off the shelf" product, the Enterprise Learning Portal comprises many useful features that allow it to adapt and reconfigure according to changing business needs, without requiring software code changes. Some of its main features include the ability to organize and catalogue courses or curricula, manage registrations and course resources, enable course purchases through e-commerce functionality, and rigorous analytic functions, to name a few.

The company has been recognized with numerous awards, including: Employer of the Year, Peterborough Chamber Business Excellence Awards; Profit 100: Canada's Fastest Growing Companies, 2008; LearnX Awards: Asia-Pacific 2008 e-Learning and Training – Best LMS Hosted Solution; Profit HOT 50 Ranking: Canada's Emerging Growth Companies, 2006.
